

mandatory supervisor training

Downey Brand's training program designed to help you comply with the new mandatory sexual harassment law for employers with over 50 employees

1 compliance

Employers with over 50 employees are now subject to a new law that requires they provide sexual harassment training for all supervisors. To comply with the law, businesses must provide training every two years or within six months of promotion.

2 criteria

Training must:

- Include practical guidance on state and federal laws
- Be interactive
- Focus on the prevention and correction of sexual harassment
- Be presented by trainers with knowledge and expertise
- Be at least two hours in length

3 rates

$1,200 per session for two hour training of up to 30 employees, including printed materials
