

Products Liability

Manufacturers and retailers facing complex products liability claims rely on Downey Brand to resolve their issues.

The experienced products liability attorneys within Downey Brand represent clients on a wide array of product liability litigation, including claims alleging failure to warn, negligent design, and manufacturing defect. With a substantiated history of success it comes as no surprise that national and international clients – including drug manufacturers, equipment manufacturers and retailers – have turned to Downey Brand to defend their product liability cases.

Selected Experience

- National manufacturer of alcoholic beverages was subjected to numerous identical product liability suits throughout the country and retained Downey Brand to defend an action filed in California, Downey Brand created an unprecedented argument to successfully obtain an involuntary dismissal of the wrongful death action. That argument was then relied upon by the other attorneys throughout the country handling the remaining cases for the client.
- Serve as counsel to automotive component part manufacturer for defense of death and injury claims.
