Clients rely on Christopher Kolkey to navigate them through the complex channels of litigation and to be a passionate advocate for them. Christopher takes a client-tailored approach to litigation, assessing the needs and goals of each case as a key driver in litigation strategy.

Christopher has litigated cases on two continents, both the west and east coasts, in state and federal courts, as well as before arbitration panels. His practice focuses on complex litigation, with emphases in construction law, trust and estate litigation, and appellate law.

Experience

Business Litigation

- Represented eight defendants in complex civil RICO case for $27 million against Taiwanese creditor, drafting 80-page motion for summary judgment, and managing millions of pages of written discovery with over 40 depositions on two continents and hundreds of discovery disputes before two court-appointed special masters. The defendants reached a favorable settlement for even less than the cost of trial.
- Represented plaintiff in a breach of contract lawsuit for over $1.6 million involving a gambling debt. Successfully moved for summary adjudication. The Los Angeles Daily Journal reported about the first-of-its-kind ruling, which relied, in part, on a 150-year old case.

Construction

A core component of Christopher Kolkey's practice is construction litigation. In that practice, Mr. Kolkey represents owners/developers, general contractors, subcontractors, material suppliers, and sureties. His representation spans both government entities and private business entities.

- Represented surety against project owner in construction defect case involving a $5 million claim to enforce a performance bond. Successfully moved for summary judgment without taking a single deposition.

- Represented public entity in resolution of a multi-million dollar construction dispute involving time-impact delays and analyses and liquidated damages.
- Represented subcontractor in multi-party complex litigation involving over $100 million in claims.
- Prepared and responded to bid protests, which has included, inter alia, successful submission of bid protest leading to approximately $24.7 million contract.
- Prepared mechanic's liens, stop payment notices, and partial/full releases of mechanic's liens and stop payment notices.

Trusts and Estates

Another core component of Christopher Kolkey's practice is trust and estate litigation. In that practice, Mr. Kolkey represents trustees and beneficiaries.

- Represented beneficiary in trust dispute involving sister surrounding the validity of a trust amendment. Successfully obtained the invalidation of trust amendment and surcharged trustee over $200,000.
- Defended a family member against a claim filed by trustee in federal court arising from alleged breach of quasi-contract. Successfully drafted and argued motion to dismiss on statute of limitations grounds.
